Dear [redacted]

I should have written long ago to thank you for the most enjoyable and profitable time I had in Washington. I really am most grateful to you and everyone else at headquarters both for their hospitality outside the office and for the way in which they found time to talk to me so freely and at such length in the office. I am afraid having me around for so long must have been a bit of a nuisance at times but as far as I am concerned it all helped immensely in contributing to the mutual comprehension on which our operation is based. After such stimulating and friendly personal contacts I left Washington with a renewed determination to do all in my power to contribute to the success of our joint efforts.

With regards

[redacted]
Yours very sincerely
T. J. Shanley
